Overview:

Facilitating access to appropriate technology as well as technology exchange and joint venture opportunities among developing countries is an important way to promote economic and social development. It is also a key component in building new partnerships for development, advancing Millennium Development Goal 8.

Facilitation of technology exchange faces many challenges, including the establishment of economically viable, market-driven mechanisms to accelerate developing countries' business collaboration based on broad, open, transparent and mutually beneficial transactions.

SS-GATE (South-South Global Assets and Technology Exchange) has been a leading advocate for the establishment of appropriate global mechanisms to facilitate technology and investment exchanges to scale up social and economic
